

BOUTIQUE HOTEL & DINING · KIGALI, RWANDA

The Court Boutique Hotel

Prepared for Operations Manager / Director

The Court Boutique Hotel is losing direct corporate reservations to OTAs because Google and AI crawlers cannot index your amenities.

|                                                                                                       |                                                                                                        |                                                                                                            |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| EST. COMMISSION BLEED $2,100 /mo Handed to OTAs, every month | PROJECTED OVER 12 MONTHS $25,200 If nothing changes this year | DIRECT-BOOKING RECOVERY $750 -1,150 /mo Realistic first-year lift |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|

01 The AI search visibility gap

We asked ChatGPT, Claude, and Perplexity the question your future guests ask:

> "best boutique hotels in Kigali"

GBP missing secondary category tags and entity schema; invisible to ChatGPT prompt for Kigali luxury stays. The assistants named Booking.com and international aggregators — not your direct site. High-intent international travellers planning by AI are routed straight to the platforms, at 15–25% commission on every booking.

02 What the commission is costing you

Industry OTA commissions run 15–25% (roughly 18% on average, charged on the VAT-inclusive rate). Against The Court Boutique Hotel's room and rate profile that is an estimated $2,100 a month — about $25,200 over a year — on bookings that could arrive direct. These are estimates from public rate and occupancy benchmarks, not a promise; we confirm the real figure with you on the call.

03 Google Business Profile & schema deficits

- No LodgingBusiness / TouristAttraction JSON-LD on the site — AI crawlers and Google cannot read your rooms, rates, or amenities.
- Google Business Profile is missing high-value secondary categories for your property type, keeping you out of the local 3-pack.
- The assistants answer travel questions for your area without ever naming your direct site — every answer routes the guest to an OTA.

04 The 3-step recovery roadmap

|                                                                                                                                                                                         |                                                                                                                                                                                           |                                                                                                                                                              |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1 Inject Lodging entity schema and allowlist the AI crawlers (GPTBot, PerplexityBot, ClaudeBot) so ChatGPT, Claude, and Perplexity can read and cite you by name. | 2 Rebuild your Google Business Profile taxonomy — primary and secondary categories (Hotel, Lodging, plus your niche categories) — to claim a top-3 Local Pack spot. | 3 Publish direct-booking intent pages for the searches guests actually run, so the reservation lands with you instead of the platform. |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|

NEXT STEP

A 15-minute walkthrough of your direct-booking fix

We'll screen-share the live AI answers for your area, the Google Local Pack gaps, and the schema fixes — then show you exactly what changes and in what order. No lock-in, prices published.

WhatsApp +237 688 099 752

Email benji@afrishieldai.com

Web afrishieldai.com